THE EGYPTIAN IMBROGLIO.

The following letter, taken from a provincia paper, conveys to my mind a mere comprehensive and understandable account of the riot at Alexandria on the 11th inst. than anything I have yet seen. It will be seen that the native troops and police behaved well, and that all the damage was done by an unarmed, disorganised mob. How it came to pass that the Europeans miral Seymour did not land a force to clear the stroots, I do not know. But this I do know : had fire arms been brought to bear on that mob, it would have been scattered like chaff before the wind. I suppose that sines the advent of the present Government, our countrymen have utter-fending himself as a manishould. We hear of a sailor ramming a walking stick down an Arab's throat until it came out at the back of the neck and still escaping sect free; of a woman being

"I have a lot of exciting news to tell you, since I wrote last. We are ived off Alexandria on Tuesday from Suda Bay, but remained 20 miles off from Alexandria, as the Admiral did not want them to know that he had a fleet outside. We stayed outside till Saturday, when the Incincible and Monarch, with 4 gamboats, also 3 French, 2 Greek, and 2 Turkish shipsinside the Bar. We found all quiet, and leave was given to officers to go ashore. On Sunday afternoon I went ashore with a mid called May, and :

the town, and thea reds on donkeys to Pompey's olerk called Harminan. We first went round Pillar and the Arab Cametery, and then went down the Catacombs. After the Catacombs we went for a ride alongside the Nile, to the Khedive's Gardens, which were awfully nice. We then went back to Alexandria, passed the Opera Zisina and came into the Grand Square, where we saw everyone running about. At first we thought that war had been declared, but on asking a furi-tive, he told us that the Arabs, to the number of 2,000 or 3,000, had risen, and were massacring the Christians and Europeans. We first of all went to a cafe, and bad an ice, and then sallied forth to a street on the right of the Square, where there was a struggle going on. Great rocks were thrown down from the houses on the men below, and pistels cracked all over the place.

We stood looking on, thinking that they would not touch an English officer, but a few minutes after the Araba overcame the Europeaus and pursued them through the streets, murdering everyone they came acress. The policemen did all they could to stop it, but they were shot down at once by the opraged Arabs. We then thought it time to book, so were turning to the right to go down to the landing place, which was about a quarter of a mile off, when an trab guide came to us, who had been with as the afternoon, and said "ran for your lives."

But we did not, as we knew if we ran we would be stabled at once; so we walked calmly on an if nothing was up, but all of a sudden, on turning a corner, we found ourselves in the centre of the victorious Arabs, who were mardering everyone peans were flying into the boats, and proceeding and tried to drive down to the boat, but were surrounded by Arabs who tried to stab them: one was stabbed and his entrails torn out of his stomach. I am going for his body in an hour's time, to have it buried at sea. Four of knooked down and surrounded by the Arabs, but he got up and charged through them, but was knocked down again and they were going to stab him, when he got up and ran to an armed police man, who saved his life by the use of his bayone back of his head. He then shouldered the body Honokona, August 4rm, 1882...

THE article on "The French in the East, reproduced in another column from St. James's Gazatte of the 24th June, does not betray any profound knowledge of the subject, nor are the forebodings of the writer well justified by facts. The writer assumes that by the annexation of Tonquin the French Government would render their territory coterminous with the Lactian borders of Burmah. But this is not the case. The northern point of Annam proper comes in and even supposing that the French proa character as to render that state practically a French province, Siamese territory would still interpose between Burman and Cochin-China, And in any case the country is of such a description as to render communication exceedingly difficult. The St. James's Gazette gives the French credit for a great deal more energy and activity in the East than they develop an Oriental France, but, with what course next to pursue - " letting unless he resold the property at a profit, which subject of the Indian Revenue. Page 275, while as for the troops, they are more rabble and I dare not wait upon I would." They would. he had not done. fain annex Tonquin to French Cochin-China for $300.

but fear to arouse the enmity of China, and some other states perhaps. England has no reason, we maintain, to fear French rivalry in Asia, either politically or commercially, and it is simple folly to enlarge, as some English journals do, on such a thame. Each civilised nation has its mission to perform, and England cannot hope or expect to obtain a monopoly of the work of reclaiming the benighted states of Asia. France is doing good and aseful work in Cochin-China, and she will one day govern the whole of it, much to the advantage of the oppressed natives. If the French can teach the Cochin-Chinese the virtues of cleanliness and industry and secure to them a pure administration of justice they will not have laboured in vain. As for the vagaries of King THEEBAW, they need give no anxiety to the British Government. So long as that eccentric monarch remains quiet and does not massacro his relatives by the hundred, no notice need be taken of his antice. It would, however, be an easy tank at any time to dispossess him of his independence f he were dispovered intriguing with a foreign power against the Queen. Indeed the wisest plan-and one that should THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY certainly have been adopted on the death tish Indian Government to adopt would be to reduce Burmab to the rank of a protected state, governed by British officials, THEEBAW retaining the gauds and trappings of royalty but divested of all power to treat with independent states. That Burmah, which has been sadly shorn in its a fellow passenger awoke him, and called his stdimensions and shut out from the coast, tention to the prisoner, who was then walking off dragged out of a cab and brutally murdered in should still retain her independence is due simply to the patience and clemency of Eng-

The St. James's Gasette writes as follows on the reported exedus of Chinese from Cuba :-The decision of the United States Cabinet not to allow the passage through their territory o the sixty thousand Chinese labourers who are desirous of returning to China from Caba, may result in consequences of some importance to ourselves. For it is said that they will now be able to carry out their intentions only by coming to this country, and although their messa resolve is to return to their native laud. there is no knowing what inducements may be placed business communications be addressed to the | before them by enterprising employers of labour on their arrival here to induce them, to change their plans. The threat of employing Chinese labour has often been held in terrorem over th heads of English workpeople; but it has hithorto possessed little significance in the minds of those to whom it has been addressed : because China is a remote country, and the Chinese a people whom they have no practical knowledge. Should any considerable number of Chinese labourers visit us, and stop among us, more will follow and then we are likely to hear of another labour question, complicated, moreover, with questions of popular morality."

> Commenting on an article in the Times of India on the appointment of General Tohernay of as Governor of Turkestan, the Russian St. Petersburg Gazette says that General Tohernayell has submitte to his dovernment a programme of policy which is characterized by an extreme desire for peace, both with China and the neighbouring Khanates and with Great Britain. His appointment " need not, therefore, cause any apprehension to English journalists, who are too ant to look with suspicion on what is being done in Central Asia." They should remember " that l'ashkend forms part of the Russian Empire, and at a loss to conjecture. that the Russian Government will look after its welfare without troubling itself about the interests, and still less about the distrust and the ealousy, of England." It is necessary that ashkend should be placed in direct communication with the centre of the empire, and for this purpose telegraphs and railways will be laid lown between it and the Caspian, vid Bokhars, Khiva and Mery-not through uninhabited stoppes and sandy desorts, to which alone the English would desire our rule to be limited.' There is a story drifting about, but generally accepted as true, that on th arrival of a European mail, not long since, the letters for the palace and great officers of State were sent as usual from the British Consulate to the Foreign Office, for distribution. A European attaché of the department, huddled them up and sent them across the river to the new Post Office, whence they were returned at ence with a wost indignant latter to the effect that Post Offices in Siam were not intended for the distribution of letters, and requesting the Foreign Office to do its own dirty work for the future. Friday the 14th being the anniversary of the taking of the Bastile, was celebrated by a fete at the French Consulate, which was attended by all the leading men of the country, both native and foreign. Dr. Harmand, the new Consul and Commissaire of France at the Court of Siam, has made himself very popular even during the short time he has been here, and all flooked to the Consulate to do him honour. The Great Exhibition, after dragging its slow length along during the last 100 days, will close finally on the 24th inst. Most of the things have been disposed of privately and the remainder are being cold at public anotion on Sundays, that day being selected on account t the greater attendance of Christians, few of whom go on wook days. One great drawback to attendance at any time is the horrible condition of the roads. Bad as Slamese roads invariably are, the road to the Palace as far exceeds them in badness as they are worse than the beautiful evel and amouth roads of Singapore. Built as they are brick laid on the flat and covered with fine saud-you can readily understand how soon they demoralize under the constant roll of heavy omnibuses and full laden gharries. Nor are the authorities to be blamed in any way for not repairing the roads and keeping them in passable order. The omnibuses and heavy vehicles which follow each other in long lines, literally lled with passengers, belong to Malays, Kaka and Chinese, all of whom claim foreign protection, and none of whom contribute one cent to the exchequer either in the shape of licenses or in direct road taxation. Their profits are enormons, their respect for their consuls intense (as numerous little presents from time to time indiente), and they out up the King's highway with perfect impunity, to the everlasting disgrace of the countries and officials who protect them in such wrong-doing. THE FRENCH IN THE EAST.

The operations of the French in Egypt and Tunis are sufficiently near to be watched, at any Union Insurance Society of Canton-$1,625 per rate. But it is different in Forther India, where they first obtained a footing in 1858 by storm. ing the fortifications of Touran, and capturing Saigon and its citadel in the following year. This was done on the familiar plea of oppressed missionaries and churches and convents destroy Shortly after their settlement in the China Some further progress was made by a treaty with In Day, the reigning Severeign of Annam; virtue of which the large northern province Tongnin was placed under a French pretecto rate. The treaty was renewed in 1874, and since then matters have been proceeding in a most satisfactory way for France. As was no doubt anticipated, the Court of Hus has observed the stipulations of the treaty in a very imperfect manner. One of its eleuses proided that the country should be thrown onboth of travel and commerce, from the sonboard to the Chinese provinces on the north. like most Eastern Courts, however, that of King Tu-Duo seems to have been persuaded that the main purpose of a treaty is to secure peace. When that is done, all the energy and couning ! of the Government should be bent on frustrating any of its provisions which interfere with the convenience of the administration. Accordingly, being mable to prevent the arrival Fromoh traders, the manderine received instructions to hamper their undertakings by the exaction of heavy duties, accumulated in such a way at different river-ports as to destroy all hope profit. This the French could not tolerate.

Remonstrances were sent; and matters eventually got into much the same condition as our relations with King Theebaw in Burma. At last, however, the quarrel has been brought to at Chinese Imperial Loan of 1881-24 per cent. prem issue. Two French tourists started on a voyage of exploration up the country, and, after being impeded at every point, were brought to a standstill and compelled to fight their way back again. The French have therefore been induced to protest in a way which can sourcely lead to any other result than the annexation of Tonquin. A force of comething under three undred men, with six field-gune, was sent up the Songkoi, or Red River, to attack Henoi, the capital of the province; and three or four days since it was announced that the place had been taken. We shall probably share in the immediste advantages of the revolution. The French will throw open the navigation of the river; and suless they introduce a heavy protective tariff, English commerce must benefit by the change. But if we look beyond we shall see that France will be enabled to tap the wealthy Chinese provinces of Yunnan and Sz'chuen, and thus materially lessen the hones entertained of the opening of the Western China route through Bhame and down the Irrawaddy. Bosides this, opportunities will arise a much closer intercourse between France and Upper Burms than now exists, or than it is at all expedient for British interests should exist. French territory will be conterminous with that of King Theebaw; and in the event of possible European complications it may suit the Republic to create a diversion against us by importing arms and money into Upper Burma. It is sufficiently well known that Choebaw or his Ministers have already offered the French Government the seven Shan States bordering on Lacs and Annam, in the hope of securing a treaty of alliance with them. The French are notoriously bad colonists, and peaceful development of Tonquin and Annam would, in the ordinary course of events, probably occupy all their attention for the next twenty years; but we knew from experience that Governor of Tonquin may quite possibly make bis appearance who may think it for the interests of his country to enter into intrigues with Upper Burms, considering that the supplying of arms and money to the Court of Mandalay would be to weaten us and strengthen the hands of France; While we are vacillating and uncertain in one relations with Theebaw, the French are overrunning Todquin, and possibly changing the entire character of our relations with Upper Burms for the future. There is no possibility of our concluding a treaty with the mission now at Simla. It is against all Burmese precedent for a treaty to be signed away from Mandalay. Meanwhile, if the advance of the French in Tonquin offers King Theobaw a chance of oblaining arms and munitions of war-the only things he wants from us -from another source, no treaty with a will be concluded at all, and our up-country trade will remain in the same precarious condition in
